JUNIOR HI WINS GAME FROM VISITORS

The Roosevelt Junior High school basket ball team evened an old score last night at the local gymnasium when it crushed the Burbank Junior High quintet of Berkeley beneath a 42 to 27 score. Smarting under a defeat administered by the Berkeley five early in the season, the local players put up a stiff fight last night and won a well earned victory.

The light but fast Roosevelt hoop tossers played rings around their heavier opponents early in the game and were leading at half-time, 19 to 7. The Burbank players came on with a rush in the second half, however, and slowly but surely ran the count up to 25 to 22 at the end of teh third quarter. Art McLaughlin and Leonard Theis were putting up a great defensive game at guard, but the Burbank tossers had the happy faculty of dropping the leather through the hoop from the center of the court.

At this stage of the game Coach Shallenberger rushed in Captain Harry Bonham, who he had been keeping in reserve. This change gave the Roosevelt boys a new lease and they soon put the game on ice.

Lowell Dyer and "Bunny" Muth proved themselves to be a great scoring combination for Roosevelt, both scoring with deadly precision and putting up a pretty passing game.

The Roosevelt quintet lined up as follows: Muth and Dyer, forwards; Concer and Bonham, center; McLaughlin, Theis and Villalovas, guards.

Ar Muth, high school star, refereed in a capable manner.

Once, according to Mrs. Doan's complaint, her husband with a sweep of his arm brushed all of the breakfast dishes from the table along with a quantity of hot cocoa into her lap. LABOR MEN TO TAKE SIMILAR ACTION VOTED 12 MONTHS AGO

San Francisco, Nov. 16.—Refusal of various union labor organizations to recognize the Industrial Association's "impartial wage board" began today with the Bay Counties Council of Carpenters. Labor leaders predicted that the Building Trades Council and affiliated groups which repudiated the wage board last year would do so again.

The first meeting of the wage board will be held at the City Hall tomorrow afternoon, but the carpenters' unions will not be represented.

The carpenters' council sent a letter to Charles F. Michaels, one of the three members of the wage board, saying, in part:

"We believe in industrial peace and have worked constantly to maintain it, but we deny the right of any man or men to determine our wages except the men who employ us and then only by mutual consent. We did not delegate that right to you. A great majority of our employers have no connection or sympathy with the men who did appoint you."

Another angle of the labor situation here was furnished by a telegram sent by the Building Trades Council to Samuel Gompers urging Gompers to enlist Attorney General Daugherty in prosecution of contractors and "material dealers" combinations in restraint of trade." Eighty contractors and dealers have been held to the Superior Court on charges of violating the State anti-trust act and the unions now seek Federal prsecutions under the Sherman Act.

BEET CROP ASSURES SAFE RETURN

The sugar beet interests of the West, both refiners and beet raisers, appear to be in for a period of healthy, prosperous development, and sugar has become one of our most important industries.

Farmers who last year planted potatoes and other crops due to the fact that the sugar companies could not renew beet contracts at war-time figures are finding that these other crops have not made them the money in many instances that sugar beets would have done even at peace-time prices.

There will undoubtedly be an increased beet acreage the coming season, due to the fact that farmers will appreciate more than ever before the value of having a crop with a contract price guaranteed in advance, which will assure them a definite return for their efforts.

Intensive cultivation of the sugar beet per acre in order to get the greatest return on the land planted should be the program in sugar beet production. This, coupled with a fair price, which is now assured, guarantees the farmer a profitable return for his efforts.

TAXATION MUST BE REDUCED

Judging from the way Congress has taken hold of ta reduction it is a more responsive legislative body than State legislatures.

Operating epenses of the government for the year ending July 1, 1922, yere 1,743 million dollars less than for the year preceding.

On top of this the national debt was reduced 1.700 million dollars and taes to be collected from the people reduced 800 million dollars.

State governments have got to make a similar showing if the men who are elected to state offices and to the legislature have any brains.

If they have no brains to adapt the State government to the reduced incomes of farmers and wages of labor they will be severely russed.

The political power entrusted to them by the people will be taken back and there will be more use of the recall than ever was dreamed of.

In every western state officials are going into power on promises to impose no new taxes and to make material reductions.

Useless political functions that cannot show actual service rendered for every dollar expended must go by the board.

BUILD HOMES NOW

Breaking all previous records for lumber delivered by water, Pacific Northwest sawmills shipped gross total of 2,318,203 feet during the first nine months of 1922, as compared with 1,249,057,310 feet for the like period in 1921, an increase of 91 per cent.

This lumber went to California and other markets, to Japan, the east coast of South America, Europe, South Africa and other points. The increase over corresponding period in 1921 ranged 58 per cent for European delivery, 84 per cent for California, 117 per cent for other domestic markets exclusive of California, 150 per cent for Cuba, and 122 per cent for Japan, 157 per cent for Australia, 124 per cent for South Africa and 425 per cent for East Coast of South America. Lumben shipped through the Panama canal increased 183 per cent for the same period.

This means that Pacific coast and northwest sawmills have contributed greatly to the prosperity and a return to normal conditions in states west of the Rocky Mountains.

The sawmills are one of the West's greatest employers of labor at good wages.

The public has become convinced that it is useless to delay building activity looking for cheaper prices, as costs have remained practically unchanged for the past year. There cannot be any further material reductions in building prices without reduction in wages and this is not probable.

Lumber is the universal building material that makes home owning by the average American possible.

For those of us who dislike the idea of sleeping any more than we can help, it will come as good news that Haiti's coffee crop is the biggest on record.

CLASS TAXATION

The Wyoming State Highway Department will urge the next legislature to tax gasoline 1 cent a gallon, to be used for construction and upkeep of highways.

This is following the lead of other states which have placed a similar tax upon gasoline on the theory that the automobile driver will receive compensating benefits.

This class of taxation is merely "expediency" taxation and is not passed on the theory of equal taxation.

In Oregon the tax on gasoline has been raised from 1 to 2 cents and a proposal was before the last legislature to increase this to 3 cents.

A tax investigating committee appointed in the State of Washington to find new methods of securing tax revenue, among other things, recommended a 3 cents per gallon tax on gasoline. The 3-cent measure was killed in Oregon and the State Farm Bureau of Washington has come out against the proposed 3-cent tax in Washington.

The practice of special or class taxation is now so firmly established in this country that equal taxation has probably gone into the discard forever. We put up with special taxes until the special tax becomes so heavy that every payment is an actual burden.

The power of a state to levy a special tax does not make the proposition right, or in any way weaken the basic principle of our government that taxation should be equal. The Boston Tea Party proved the ultimate necessity of equal taxation rather than special taxation.

CAMPAIGN OF SOCIALISM CONTINUES

The League of California Municipalities, composed of 241 municipalities, is reported to be backing a movement favoring state control of fire insurance rates.

Virtually every state, including California, through an insurance department enforces rules and regulations which require proper reserves on the part of insurance companies doing business in the state and protects the policy holder against loss. The companies, however, have been allowed to manage their own affairs as far as establishing rates is concerned.

The move to put the state into the insurance rate making business represents the constant effort being made by certain people to drive the state farther and farther into the uncharted seas of socialism.

If the State of California decides to go into the rate making business for insurance companies, it will be but a step farther for the state to establish a department for regulating the price of newspapers or newspaper advertising, the price of gasoline, the price at which a farmer may sell his products in the city public markets or any other price.

In fact the effect of socialism is progressive. It absorbs one industry after another and slowly deprives the people of individual rights and opportunities to do business.

UNPROTECTED PUBLIC PROPERTY

Fire insurance companies recently paid approximately $24,000 in settlement of a loss on property belonging to the City of Jeksonville, Fla. The construction of the damaged building was good—so good that it had previously prompted certain local political wiseaeres to introduce a measure into the city council advocating the dropping of fire insurance on this and certain other city property, substituting therefore a self-insurance fund to be built up by allotments of $15,000 a year. This measure failed of passage. If it had passed, the fund would now be wiped out as a consequence of the recent loss, and the city would have had to assume an additional deficit of $9,000.

The State of Oregon just lost a $50,000 girls industrial school building—no insurance.

Is it good business to take such risks with public property? No well managed private institution would allow $50,000, $5000 or $500,000 worth of property to stand uninsured.

As far as De Valera is concerned there will be no peace in Ireland, either with or without victory.

What redress has a mail order husband when his picture bride does not come up to the specifications of her photograph?

Old Kentucky Home at Richmond Today

"My Old Kentucky Home," a motion picture of sweet mother love which weaves a romance the like of which has never been known before for human interest and heart throbs and named after the famous ballad, is coming to the Richmond T. & D. theater today and tomorrow.

It is a story of an aristocratic Southern widow whose son has been away for two years without her having heard from him. He has been railroaded to prison and when released is on the brink of plunging into the underworld when he is roused by the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home." He goes home and is successful in keeping his secret from his mother.

His former sweetheart is on hand and their beautiful romance is renewed. In order to recoup her fortune the mother has entered her prize horse, "Dixie" in the Kentucky Derby. A smuggler who is in love with the boy's sweetheart threatens exposure if he does not stay away from the girl and fear grips the young man.

It is the day of the great Kentucky Derby—the day when fortunes are staked to be won or lost. "Dixie" must win. It is a history-making race. "Dixie" runs a wonderful race to the tune of thousands of cheers and it is then that the smuggler exposes the boy. Fate then intervenes and the detective who arrested the boy appears, arrests the smuggler, and announces the boy was innocent of the charge.

see me. It seems so long. You were into the army, didn't you?"

"I did. I'm here now with the Ninth cavalry. But—never mind me. What're you doing way down here?"

"On t square, George, I don't know any ore why I'm here than—than you know."

"Well, that beats me!" ejaculated Thorne, sitting back in his chair, amaze and concern in his expression. "What the devil's wrong? Your old man's got too much money for you ever to be up against it. Dick, you couldn't have gone to the bad?"

A tide of emotion surged over Gale. How good it was to meet a friend—someone to whom to talk! He had never appreciated his loneliness until that moment.

"George, how I ever drifted down here I don't know. I didn't exactly quarrel with the governor. But—d—n it, Dad hurt me—shamed me, and I dug out for the West. It was this way. After leaving college I tried to please him by tackling one thing after ano that he set me to do. On the s e, I had no head for business. I made a mess of everything. The governor got sore. When I quit—when I told him straight out that I was going west to fare for myself, why, it wouldn't have been so tough if he hadn't laughed at me. He said I couldn't earn a dollar—that I'd starve out west, and couldn't get back home unless I sent to him for money. He said he didn't believe I could fight—could really make a fight for anything under the sun. Oh—he—he shot it into me all right."

Dick dropped his head upon his hands, somewhat ashamed of the smarting dimness in his eyes.

"Fight!" cried Thorne, hotly. "What's ailing him? Didn't they call you Biff Gale in college? Dick, you were one of the best men Stagg ever developed."

"The governor didn't count football," said Dick. "He didn't mean that kind of a fight. When I left home I don't think I had an idea what was wrong of me. But, George, I think I know now. I was a rich man's son—spoiled, dependent, absolutely ignorant of the value of money. I haven't yet discovered any earning capacity in me. I seem to be unable to do anything with my hands. That's the trouble. But I'm at the end of my tether now. And I'm going to punch cattle or be a miner, or do some real stunt—like joining the rebels."

"Aha! I thought you'd spring that last one on me," declared Thorne, wagging his head. "Well, you just forget it. Say, old boy, there's something doing in Mexico. The United States in general doesn't realize it. But across that line there are crazy revolutionists, ill-paid soldiers, guerrilla leaders, raiders, robbers, outlaws, bandits galore, starving peons by the thousand, girls and women in terror. Mexico is like some of her volcanoes—ready to erupt fire and hell! Don't make the awful mistake of joining the rebel forces. If you didn't starve or get shot in ambush, or die of thirst, some Greaser would knife you in the back for your belt buckle or boots. There are a good many Americans with the rebels eastward toward Agua Prieta and Juarez. Orozco is operating in Chihuahua, and I guess he has some idea of warfare. But this is Sonora, a mountainous desert, the home of the slave and the Yaqui. There's unorganized revolt everywhere. We're patrolling the boundary line. We're making a grand bluff. I could tell you of a dozen instances where cavalry should have pursued raiders on the other side of the line. But we won't do it. The officers are a grouchy lot these days. You see, of course, what significance would attach to United States cavalry going into Mexican territory. There would simply be hell. My own colonel is the sorest man on the job. We're all sore. It's like sitting on a powder magazine. We can't keep the rebels and raiders from crossing the line. Yet we don't fight. My commission expires soon. I'll be discharged in three months. You can bet I'm glad for more reasons than I've mentioned."

Thorne was evidently laboring under strong, suppressed excitement. His face showed pale under the tan, and his eyes gleamed with a dark fire. He had seated himself at a table near one of the doorlike windows leading into the street, and every little while he would glance sharply out. Also he kept consulting his watch.

These details gradually grew upon Gale as Thorne talked.

"George, it strikes me that you're upset," said Dick, presently. "I seem to remember you as a cool-headed fellow whom nothing could disturb. Has the army changed you?"

Thorne laughed. It was a laugh with a strange, high note. It was reckless—it hinted of exaltation. He peered out the window upon another

His actions were rapid. Returning to the table, he put his hands upon it and leaned over to look closely into Gale's face.

"I'm away from camp without leave," he said.

"Isn't that a serious offense?" asked Dick.

"Serious? For me, if I'm discovered, it means ruin. There are rebels

"Serious? For Me, If I'm Discovered, It Means Ruin—"

in town. Any moment we might have trouble. I ought to be ready for duty—within call. If I'm discovered it means arrest. That means delay—the failure of my plans—ruin."

Thorne bent over closer with his dark eyes searchingly bright.

"What would you say, Dick Gale, if I told you that you're the one man I'd rather have come along than any other at this crisis of my life?"

The earnest gaze, the passionate voice with its deep tremor drew Dick upright, thrilling and eager, conscious of strange, unfamiliar impetuosity.

"Thorne, I should say I was glad to be the fellow," replied Dick.

Their hands locked for the moment, and they sat down again with heads close over the table.

"Listen," began Thorne, in low, swift whisper, "a few days, a week ago—it seems like a year!—I was of some assistance to refugees fleeing from Mexico into the States. They were all women, and one of them was dressed as a nun. Quite by accident I saw her face. It was that of a beautiful girl. I observed she kept aloof from the others. I suspected a disguise, and, when opportunity afforded, spoke to her, offered my services. She replied to my poor efforts at Spanish in fluent English. She had fled in terror from her home, some place down in Sinaloa. Rebels are active there. Her father was captured and held for ransom. When the ransom was paid the rebels killed him. The leader of these rebels was a bandit named Rojas. Rojas saw the daughter, made off with her. But she contrived to bribe her guards, and escaped almost immediately before any harm befell her. She hid among friends. Rojas nearly tore down the town in his efforts to find her. Then she disguised herself and traveled by horseback, stage and train to Casita.

"She had no friends here, no money. She knew Rojas was trailing her. This talk I had with her was at the railroad station, where all was bustle and confusion. No one noticed us, so I thought. I advised her to remove the disguise of a nun before she left the waiting-room. And I got a boy to guide her. But he fetched her to this house. I had promised to come in the evening to talk over the situation with her.

"I found her, Dick, and when I saw her—I went stark, staring, raving mad over her. She is the most beautiful, wonderful girl I ever saw. Her name is Mercedes Castaneda, and she belongs to one of the old wealthy Spanish families. She has lived abroad and in Havana. She speaks French as well as English. She is—but I must be brief.

"Dick, think, think! With Mercedes also it was love at first sight. My plan is to marry her and get her farther to the interior, away from the border. It may not be easy. She's watched. So am I. Rojas must have got word to his friends here; yesterday his gang of cutthroat rebels arrived, and today he came. When I learned that, I took my chance and left camp; I hunted up a priest. He promised to come here. It's time he's due. But I'm afraid he'll be stopped. You see, we're over the line—"

"Are we in Mexican territory now?" queried Gale, sharply.

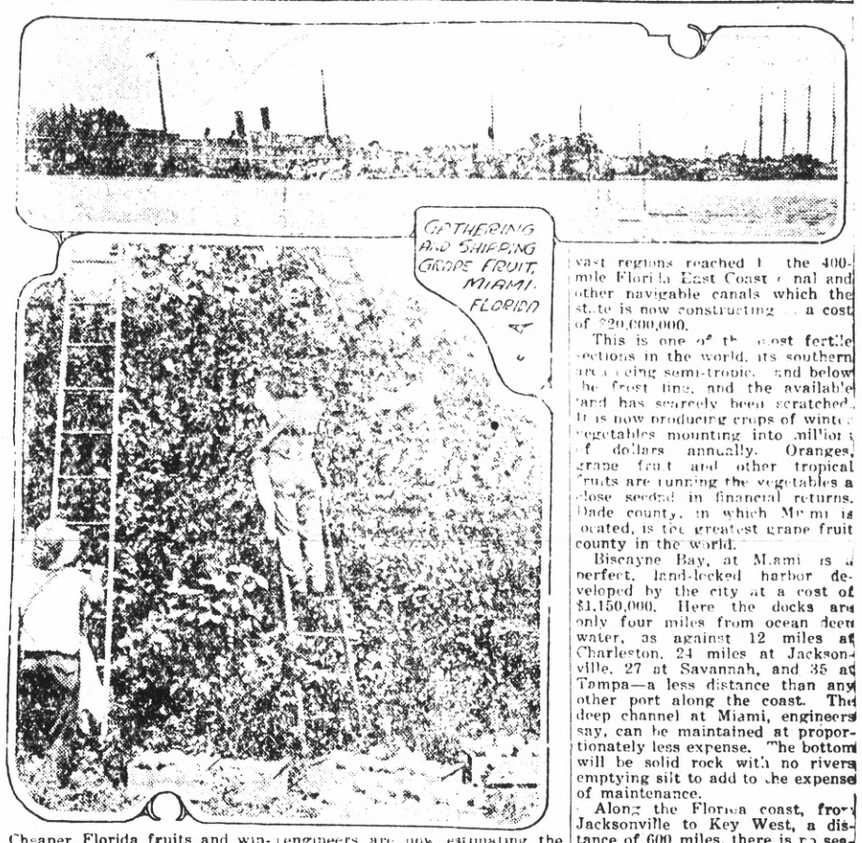
"I guess yes, old boy. That's what complicates it. Rojas and his rebels have Casita in their hands. If Mercedes is really watched—if her identity is known, which I am sure is the case—we couldn't get far from this house before I'd be knifed and she seized."

"Good heavens! Thorne, can that sort of thing happen less than a stone's throw from the United States line?" asked Gale, incredulously.

"It can happen, and don't you forget it. You don't seem to realize the power these guerrilla leaders, these rebel captains, and particularly these bandits, exercise over the mass of Mexicans. I've seen Rojas. He's a handsome, bold, sneering devil, vainer than any peacock. He decks himself in gold lace and silver trappings, in all the finery he can steal. He spends gold like he spills blood. But he is chiefly famous for abducting women. The peon girls consider it an honor to be ridden off with. Rojas has shown a penchant for girls of the better class."

To Be Continued.

FLORIDA FRUITS CHEAPER IF CONGRESS IMPROVES HARBOR



Cheaper Florida fruits and winter vegetables, with greatly increased production, will result from the development of the harbor at Miami, if Congress favors the channel project in which citizens of Miami are offering to match federal funds, dollar for dollar. Army engineers are now estimating the cost, with a prospect of favorable action.

This channel development will permit of the quicker and cheaper ocean shipment of Florida fruits. A productive area of 5,000 square miles will be served, including the vast regions reached by the 400-mile Florida East Coast canal and other navigable canals which the state is now constructing at a cost of $20,000,000.

This is one of the most fertile sections in the world, its southern area being semi-tropic, and below the frost line, and the available land has scarcely been scratched. It is now producing crops of winter vegetables mounting into millions of dollars annually. Oranges, grape fruit and other tropical fruits are running the vegetables a close second in financial returns. Dade county, in which Miami is located, is the greatest grape fruit county in the world.

Biscayne Bay, at Miami is a perfect, land-locked harbor developed by the city at a cost of $1,150,000. Here the docks are only four miles from ocean deep water, as against 12 miles at Charleston, 24 miles at Jacksonville, 27 at Savannah, and 35 at Tampa—a less distance than any other port along the coast. The deep channel at Miami, engineers say, can be maintained at proportionately less expense. The bottom will be solid rock with no rivers emptying silt to add to the expense of maintenance.

Along the Florida coast, from Jacksonville to Key West, a distance of 600 miles, there is no seaport for shipment from this productive land by ocean going vessels—no seaport that would offer refuge to an ocean liner in case of stress or storm, and many shipwrecks and much loss of life have resulted.

His Wish Granted, Convict Dies in Jail

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 16.—Dan Murphy died today as he wished—in the South Carolina penitentiary, where for twenty-five years he had been a prisoner.

Sentenced for the murder of the treasurer of Orangeburg County, in 1897, Murphy, until a year ago, never had ridden in an automobile or seen a motion picture.

Later Murphy was offered a pardon, but he said he was "too far behind the times" and wanted to end his days in prison.

HELD TO ANSWER ON CHARGE OF FORGERY

W. M. Pierson, 24, charged with forgery in connection with the alleged embezzlement of $1,500, who was arrested in Oakland several days ago, was held to answer to the Superior Court by Justice of the Peace F. L. Glass at Martinez yesterday.

Pierson took the stand in the preliminary and reviewed the story of the alleged forgery.

He was formerly employed by the Edwin Brown & Son's Company of San Francisco, an insurance firm, and is alleged to have taken a draft for $1,500 of the Globe Rutger Insurance Company in payment for a fire loss to the Calwood Lumber Company of San Diego.

Pierson also told of depositing the draft in the Bank of Martinez and then forming a "fake" company in Oakland known as the Oakland Realty and Investment Company and then issuing two checks on the account in the local bank, payable to the Oakland firm.

In his story at the preliminary hearing he declared that he needed the money to meet expenses. He was receiving $170 monthly with the insurance firm, it is stated.

Piersons' bail was fixed at $2,500.

Postoffices Will Get War Dept. Aid

Washington, Nov. 16.—The usual congestion of mail facilities experienced by the Postoffice Department throughtout the country as Christmas time will be relieved this year in so far as the War Department can make its machinery effective. Orders issued today by Major General Dabis, adjutant general of the army, to all commanding officers of corps areas directed them to hold all motor vehicles "not actually needed for military purposes" for use of the postoffice authorities.

CUNO TO FORM NEW CABINET FOR GERMANY

Berlin, Nov. 16.—Wilhelm Cuno, general manager of the Hamburg-American steamship line, has accepted the task of forming a cabinet to succeed the Wirth ministry, it was officially announced this afternoon.

ANKLE SKIRTS,' SAYS PARIS; • "NIX," IS POTTSTOWN REPLY

GIRLS of Pottstown, Pa., have formed an alliance to defend the knee-length skirt. "Paris designers may insist that those trailing things must be worn, but we are going to continue to wear 'em short," is the ultimatum of the Pottstown home rulers. "Pottstown is not Paris."

Undoubtedly true! So the battle is joined, Pottstown on one extreme, Paris on the other.

The question of just how long the skirts are to be has started plenty of skirmishing throughout the country. The clash of conflicting opinions may be heard from Maine to California. Designers and dressmakers occupy an unenviable position at the center of the conflict. Manufacturers, however, have seen the handwriting on the wall. They say the skirts are going to be longer—about eight inches from the ground—and are basing their production on this belief. They say that the average American woman is not an extremist.

A great many things depend on skirt length, you see. Low heeled shoes and woolen stockings are not "dressy," while long skirts are "dressy." They do not harmonize. In addition, low heeled shoes taken in conjunction with long skirts make the feet look large, and woolen stockings, for protective purposes, are hardly necessary. Goloshes cannot be seen in company with long skirts, being also disturbers of "dressiness." Bloomers are well enough—indeed, almost necessary—with knee-length dresses, but with those reaching to the ankles, or even half way to the ankles, petticoats are equally necessary. They provide a foundation for the proper "hang," and provide also opaqueness.

So skirts—mere skirts—are revolutionizing industries, and the wheels of production are being turned from woolen to silk and mercerized stockings, from low to high heeled shoes, from goloshes to Russian boots, from bloomers to petticoats.

QUARTER MILLION FIRE

Portland, Me., Nov. 16.—Fire early today swept the plant of the E. T. Burrowes Manufacturing Company, makers of screens, causing damage estimated at $250,000.

6-MINUTE FERRY CONTROL FIGHT IS ENDED

Vallejo, Nov. 16.—Amicable adjustment of the Six Minute Ferry Company affairs resulted during the annual meeting of the stockholders of the company held in Sciots' Hall.

Compromise of the legal action pending in the Superior Court at Fairfield between the directors of the Six Minute Ferry Company and the Six Minute Protective Association was effected during the meeting, the old board of directors were ousted, a new board of five members elected and the stockholders unanimously voted to accept the offer of the old directors to release the $260,000 in escrow in consideration of $65,000, which amount is to be paid in cash to the ousted directors.

The new board of directors comprises A. H. Draughn, president; Mrs. Mary Campbell, secretary; C. A. Pracht, Donald Munro and A. H. Klatt of the Rodeo-Vallejo Ferry Company.

The resolution compromising the suit against the directors and agreeing to pay the sum of $65,000 in exchange for the escrowed stock was introduced by A. H. Draughn and was carried with minor objections. Draughn, in urging that the resolution be passed, outlined the present entangled condition of the affairs of the company, and showed that by continuing the litigation instituted a victory for either side would only result in a loss of time and money to all concerned.

Following the acceptance of the compromise the stockholders adopted a resolution amending the by-laws of the company to provide for five directors instead of sixteen, as in the past. The new directorate is to serve without compensation.

The action of the stockholders yesterday ends a series of heated controversies that have extended over the last year and which have prevented liquidation of the assets of the company to the 1,500 stockholders. When all assets have been distributed each stockholder will receivve approximately $45 per share, the original investment being $50.

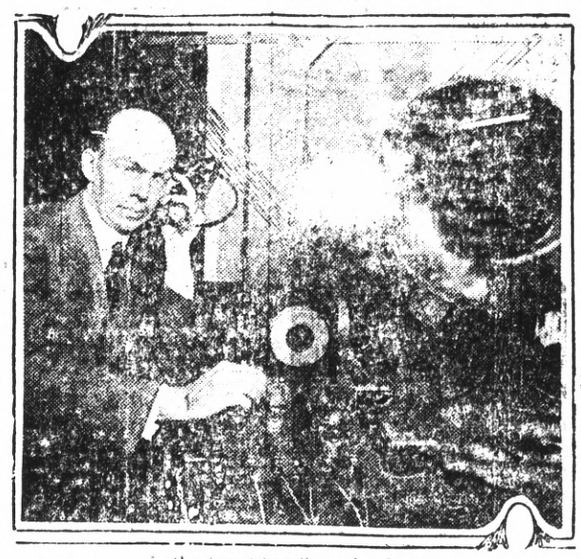
DECLARES RADIO INVENTIONS MAKE ARMSTRONG WITH EDISON AND BELL



in the Armstrong Operating Room.

"What Edison is to electricity and Bell to the telephone, Edwin H. Armstrong is to the radio-phone.

"If the radio is to be transformed, Armstrong will be one of the men who will transform it. The present generation is just beginning to hear of him, but the world will a long time ring with his name. No man can do what he had already done without taking his place among the world's notable men. Armstrong's ability to become interested will make him work and his ability to work will spread his fame everywhere."

This is the opinion of Allan L. Benson, who discusses this inventor upon whom public interest is now focussed and his relation to the youngest of the arts, in the November issue of Hearst's International Magazine. Lack of capital and long drawn out litigation did not deter Armstrong in his researches.

"Armstrong," writes Mr. Benson, "found the radio talking like a hair-lipped man and left it singing like a nightingale.

"Three revolutionary inventions, all made by Armstrong, placed the radio-phone where it is. It is the third invention, the super-regenerative circuit, of which not even one radio fan in a thousand has ever heard, that makes the radio-phone sing like a nightingale. The invention is so recent that the manufacturers have not yet had time to place it on the market.

"As a result of Armstrong's invention," says Mr. Benson, "the threatened war between amateurs and the general public—or at least the listening public—is off, for amateurs may now practise when they please without interfering with the pleasure of others. Also, the three million or so aerials which went up so rapidly last March will probably come down again just as rapidly. The Armstrong super-regenerative circuit needs no aerial."

"Armstrong is a fine example of the extent to which an idea can take hold of and dominate a human being," says Mr. Benson. "When a problem seizes him, he gives it to everything he has. He did this with the radio again and again, sometimes working years on a single thing. Yet I suspect that his normal attitude is one of repose. His mind really begins to glow only when it is energized by a problem that appeals to him."

JAPAN WILL REFUSE TO SURRENDER KWANTUNG

Tokyo, Nov. 16.—Foreign Minister Uchida, discussing in an interview with the Japanese press the demand of the Chinese parliament that Japan return the Kwantung peninsula, where Port Arthur is situated, said Japan hardly was likely to listen to a demand about a matter already settled. The government and the people of Japan, he added, were united on the question and would not budge an inch from the positions assumed by them.

STILL SEIZED AND FINE PAID BY J. RADONVICH

It did not take the Richmond police long yesterday to begin and end the story of a bootlegging joint that was operating at 2117 Ohio avenue.

Yesterday morning Chief of Police Wood and his men descended on the place at the above number and found Jack Radonvich operating an illicit still. He was arrested and the still confiscated.

When he was arraigned in the police court on a charge of violating the little Volstead ordinance, he pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $150. A suspended sentence of three months was also imposed.

The still was one of the most complete the police have ever seized.

In the raid fourteen barrels of mash was taken, and about five gallons of jackass brandy.

With our experience and equipment we have a notion that we could work out a pretty fair sort of battery service without much help.

But we also have an idea that it wouldn't measure up to the brand of service developed for our use by the Willard Storage Battery Company.

As Battery Headquarters we have the benefit of their years of experience, and of the definite national standards of service they have been able to develop as a result.

Come in! No matter what make of battery you happen to have it needs the sort of attention provided by the Willard Standard of Service.

Are You the Man Who "Never Reads Advertisements"?

Some men, who are neither blind nor illiterate, claim sincerely that they "never read advertisemnts."

Yet, if you could investigate, in each case you would find that the man who "never reads advertisements" used an advertised tooth paste or shaving cream or soap. If he owns an automobile it will be an advertised car. If you ask his opinion of any automobile he will reply in words that might have been lifted bodily from an advertisement of that automobile.

Advertising has formed his opinions to a great degree. He may have received his information through others who obtained their knowledge from advertising. But it is a fact that no man can escape the effect of advertising even if he does say he "never reads advertisements."

Not one of us ever reasoned out from his own mind that the earth is round. If we had not heard it or read it we would never have known it.

In these days of good, truthful, helpful advertising to say "I never read advertisements" is merely your way of saying "I don't read all advertisements."

FAMOUS DESIGNER DENOUNCES FLAPPER EXTREMISTS

DINNER GOWNOF BLACK ZION LACE — EVENING GOWN OF GOLD ZION LACE

CHICAGO.—"It is the extremists that kill the styles and are responsible for the rapid-fire changes in fashions for which designers and manufacturers are blamed," according to Madame Alla Ripley, president of the Fashion Art League of America whose fall fashion show demonstrated some radical changes in women's costumes.

"It is the bare-kneed flapper who has brought the smart skirt down to the spat top on the street and almost to the floor in the ball room. When, in spite of violent protest, she accepts the longer skirt she will drag it out to a length her grandmother never would consider.

"Many of the long clinging evening gowns this season are made entirely of lace over sheaths of crepe or soft satin. Gold and silver Zion laces made by such creators and manufacturers as Marshall Field and Company will be in vogue and are shown in a variety of charming combinations. Most of these gowns have draperies that hang in an uneven hem line and frequently there are long narrow trains. A gold lace is made up over gold colored crepe. A gold-colored lace gown has a sheath of cloth of gold. Silver laces and silver-colored laces are made up in combination with silver cloth and grey crepe and satin, sometimes with a touch of old blue or dull rose.

"The most radical and important departure in styles this fall and winter also is traceable directly to the flapper. It is her bare arms displayed on the street and in public places that has brought back the long tight fitting sleeve reaching glove-like from the shoulder to the wrist and sometimes extending over the hand.

"The tendencies in fashion now are purely American designs made preferably with American fabrics. This is made possible by organizations and institutions such as the Fashon Art League whose primary object is to improve American styles and make them more distinctive and more beautiful, and Marshall Field and Company who with their associated producers all over the world are making the best in art and design from the Orient and Europe and adapting it to American needs and tastes.

"The popular silhouette is what is known as a Moyenage design. Another distinctive note in the American styles this year is the 'simple little gown' draped softly in rich materials, which looks very easy of achievement and is really only to an artist."

REALTY MEN ARE ACTIVE IN ALL PARTS STATE

Three weeks in advance of the Eighteenth Annual Convention of the California Real Estate Association at Santa Ana, association officers are endeavoring to meet all calls and form a total of one hundred local realty boards.

Up to Armistice Day, ninety-three realty boards had been formed in this state, and the ninety-fourth, Honolulu, had affiliated with the California Real Estate Association.

This week a new board meeting was held at La Habra, and plans are under way for a meeting at Gardena. In the northern part of the state new boards are to be organized at Ukiah, Salinas, Redding, and San Leandro. On the 21st a new board meeting will be held at Lankershim. The Lankershim Board, if it is organized, will be the twenty-seventh realty board in Los Angeles County. A realty board meeting will be held at Gardena, November 23rd, and a meeting is planned at Inglewood.

Oceanside is another city whose realty dealers are planning to form a realty board.

During the past two weeks the following new boards have been formed on the basis of membership in the state and national organizations: Beverly Hills, Redondo Beach, Bellflower, San Gabriel, Venice and Exeter.

Illinois, the next nearest state—now has forty-eight realty boards.

Wright Act Will Go Into Effect On December 1

The Wright prohibition enforcement act, adopted by the voters at the last election, will become operative about December 1, according to a statement from Attorney General U. S. Webb. Five days after the official canvass of the vote has been completed by the Secretary of State the act goes into effect. Completion of this canvass is expected to be not later than November 25. Under the Wright Act the district attorney of each county becomes the administrator of the law and all police and other peace officials are required to enforce it.

Young Man Considered For Good Position

"Oh, Betty, listen to your hubby. I've exciting news for wou. Guess what?"

"Oh, Jim, what is it? I know by your smile it's something nice. Hurry and tell me, dear."

"Well, dear, the boss—the big boss himself—has invited us to have a dinner with him and his wife next Thursday. Think of that. I know that means he's considering me for a place higher up. Isn't that good news?"

"Oh, yes, darling. I hope they are giving you something worth while. You've worked so hard. But, goodness, I will be frightened dining ot a big house like that, with all the servants.

"Don't feel that way, Betty. They're really nice people, and that's what counts. The boss himself was poor when he was a young man, so don't be embarrassed.? I suppose you will want a new dress for the occasion."

"Oh, yes, dear, if you think we can afford it."

"I want my pretty wife to be at her best. Something quiet, but in good taste, that doesn't cost too much."

"I know, dear, like I can buy at Cherry's at 516 Thirteenth street. They do have such attractive dresses, and the best of it is that we can buy on credit. We won't have to pay it all at once."

Cherry's men's store is at 528 Thirteenth tereet.—Advertisement.

BIG SUM ASKED FOR SUPPORT OF SCHOOLS

Sacramento, Nov. 16.—Departmental appropriation hearings, on which the State budget for the coming biennium will be based, were concluded here today when requests of the State department of education were submitted to the State board of control by Will C. Wood, superintendent of public instruction.

Biennial requests of the teachers' colleges and special schools and of the State institutions will be received at a later date. Construction of the 1923 budget, however, will begin at once.

Based on enrollment estimates, an increase of $7,261,000 over the amount granted in 1921 for elementary and high schools was asked today by Wood. This increased appropriation is in accordance with t ehconstitutional enactment providing a per capita expenditure of $30 for every pupil enrolled in California schools.

Othere requests by the department of education were:

A NATIONAL HERITAGE

A Country of Wooden Houses

That is what foreigners sometimes call America, because wood is used so lavishly in the building of our homes.

A folder we are issuing this month shows how this too-prodigal use of wood, for many purposes besides building, has already exhausted three-fifths of the timber of the United States.

We must conserve our forests. And we should not overlook our personal financial resources.

This Institution helps patrons systematize and make the most profitable use of the resources at their command.

Advertising Is the Sunlight of Business

To all that is healthy and vital in business it means increased strength and growth; but advertising is a fierce heat which withers and consumes that which is unsound.

A business which is not a good business should not be advertised. A business which would not benefit from a widespread appreciation of its ideals had better acquire a new set of ideals.
